

November 15, 2004

To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to be able to write a letter of recommendation for Jeffrey Stahl.

During the 2004 spring semester, Jeff was a student in my graduate course Project Based Learning through Temple University. He successfully completed this course and was a tremendous asset to the class. Fortunately, my experience did not end with that course. Currently, he is a student in my Methods of Microcomputer Applications class. Therefore I have had the opportunity, once again, to experience the motivation and drive that he possesses. In class he demonstrates his ability to be a motivated, excellent student while working tirelessly to achieve his goals. Jeff is and was the type of student that stands apart from the rest. This is evident in his accomplishments that speak volumes to all of his involvements as an individual striving to become a full-time teacher. Many cannot match his energy or his desire to be the best he can be.

As a student teacher, Jeff has managed successfully to juggle all that is needed to succeed. It is obvious that his work ethic includes initiative, dependability, responsibility, and knowledge. As a result of his work ethic, Jeff has taken on more responsibilities than ever expected from a student teacher. Currently as a student teacher, he is coordinating programs for the Enrichment Honors Course (EHOC) program at Boyertown Area Senior High. This program involves planning curriculum and creating documents for class implementation. Hence, Jeff is someone you want to be working with you.

For those reasons, Jeff has shown that he is an outstanding individual who will most definitely make a wonderful teacher. I am pleased to be able to say that Jeff will represent the profession well. His colleagues and students will definitely be better for the experience. Therefore, if I can provide additional information, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Fisher
Adjunct Temple University Instructor